LOVE'S TRI-COLOR.

A blue-bell on her baby lap I threw,
When first we were together,
Crouched on the fragrant meadow where it grew—
That showery, sunbright weather!
All April in the skies,
May gleaming through her eyes;
Sweet birds singing,
Blossoms springing—
Buds upon the heather!

A purpling rose I placed within her hand—
That young life's summer token;
Her girlish soul and soul could understand,
The maiden spell was broken!
Soft loving light on her face
Revealed its dimpling grace;
Warm heart-flashes
In her blushes
Told the words just spoken.

A waxen-white camellia on her breast—
Ah! well do I remember—My love laid down where calm sun lay at rest
'Twas in the bleak December,
Dead, dead, her heart's love-fire—
Mine only may expire
In death's sleeping;
Life-long weeping
Shall not quench its ember.

A SOUTHERN DUEL.

[From Parton's Life of Butler.]

The principals of the duel were Col. Augustus Alston, a graduate of West Point, and Colonel Lee Reed; planters both; chief men in their country; politicians of course; long-standing bitter feud between the families, aggravated by political aspirations and disappointments; the whole country sympathizing with one or the other—eagerly, wildly sympathizing. At length one of the Alston party, on slight pretext, challenged Reed, which challenge Reed refused to accept; no man but Alston for his pistol. Another Alstonian challenge, and yet another he declined. Then Alston himself sent a challenge—Alston the best shot in a State whose citizens cultivated the deadly art with the zeal of saints toiling after perfection. This challenge Lee instantly accepted. Weapon, the rifle, hair-trigger, ounce ball. Men to stand at twenty paces, back to back; to wheel at the word one; to fire as soon as they pleased after the word; the seconds to continue counting as far as five; after which no firing.

Lee was a slow portly man—a good shot if he could fire in his own way without the preliminary wheeling. He regarded himself a dead man; he felt that he had no chance whatever of his life on such terms, not one in a thousand. He bought a coffin and a shroud, and arranged his affairs for immediate death. The day before the duel his second, a captain in the army, took him out of town and gave him a long drill in the wheel-and-fire exercise. The pupil was inapt; could not get the knack of the wheeling. If he wheeled quickly his aim was bad; if he wheeled slowly there was no use of his wheeling at all, for his antagonist was as ready with wheel as with trigger from old practice at West Point. "Lee," said the captain, "you must wheel quicker or you've no chance. Stimulated by this remark, Lee wheeled with velocity, and fired with such success as to bring down a neighbor riding along the road.

Lee sent his coffin and shroud to the field. Mrs. Alston accompanied her husband. "I have come," she said, "to see Lee Reed shot."

The men were placed, and the seconds counted one. In swiftly wheeling, the light cape of Alston's coat touched the trigger, and the ball whistled over Reed's head, who stood amazed, with his rifle half presented. The word two recalled him to himself; he fired, and Alston fell, pierced through the heart. Mrs. Alston flew to her fallen husband and found the ball which had slain him. In the sight and hearing of all the witnesses of the duel, her dead husband bleeding at her feet, she lifted the ball, and with a loud voice and fierce dramatic gesture, swore that that ball should kill Lee Reed.

In the afternoon, ten of the Alston party, headed by Lewis Alston, brother to the deceased, drew themselves up, rifle in hand, bowie-knife and pistol in belt, before the hotel of which the adherents of Reed assembled congratulating their chief. They sent in a message challenging ten of the Lee party to come forth and fight them in the public square. Much parleying ensued, which ended in the refusal of the Lees to accept the invitation.

A few days after, Lee was seated at the table of the hotel in the public dining room, at which also sat men, ladies, and children—a large number—Dr. McCormick among them. Lewis Alston entered, drew a pistol and shot him through the liver. The wound was not mortal. After some months of confinement Lee was well again and went about as usual, the bloody-minded Alston still loose among the people. They met at length in the streets of the town, and Alston shot him again, this time inflicting a mortal wound.

Then there was a hideous farce of a trial. Every man in the court-room, except two, was armed to the teeth. These two were judge and the principal witness, Dr. McCormick. The jury men all had a rifle at their side in the jury-box—twelve men, twelve rifles. The prisoner had two enormous horse-pistols protruding from his vest. The spectators were all armed—the Lees to prevent a rescue in case of conviction, the Alstons to protect their man in case of acquittal.

That night, the trial not yet concluded, the prisoner deemed it best to escape from prison. He went to Texas; met on the road an old enemy whom he shot dead in the saddle; on reaching the next town, boasted of his exploit to the murdered man's friends and neighbors. Thirty of them seized him, tied him to a tree and shot him—all the thirty firing at once, to divide the responsibility among them. And so the brute's career was fully ended.

HOW SHREWD MEN ACQUIRE A FORTUNE.—There is always good fortune in store for those who know how to avail themselves of the proper means to secure it. It does not generally follow that the man who makes the greatest noise is the individual who corals the dollars. On the contrary, the fickle goddess Fortuna often turns from those and showers her favors on the unpretending individual who, although his tongue is still, has an active brain, and woos her in a way that the more blatant and pretentious disregard, as unworthy of their time and trouble. The misjudging world thinks, of course, the bold and dashing business man is carrying the golden palace by storm; but while his foot is yet on the lowest round of the scaling-ladder, let his quiet and apparently unobtrusive rival is in the citadel, has laid his hand on the topmost spoke of the revolving wheel, and gained possession of the glittering prize. One means of accomplishing this desirable result—and one, too, foolishly neglected except by the shrewd few—is that of advertising, advertising extensively. "Ah," says the aristocrat in trade or professional business, with his nose curled up in contempt, "Nobody of any account advertises." But almost before his olfactory organ has resumed its normal shape, the despised advertiser is on the Assessor's book for a quarter of a million, and his despiser is trembling on the verge of bankruptcy, and doing any amount of shinning to keep his head above water. The history of the present century is full of illustrations of the truth of what we state. England—where the non-advertising prejudice is hard to combat—and America boast their millionaires whose way to wealth was first pointed out by the index to a newspaper paragraph. Moffatt, Swaim, Holloway, Townsend, Ayer, Simmons and many others are cases in point. In our own community we can cite the instance of Dr. L. J. CZAPKAY, who, after some ten years of professional practice in San Francisco, now retired the owner of a princely fortune. He made this by a judicious system of advertising. Had he listened to the advice of his professional brethren he would have refrained from making his business known through the columns of the newspapers, and been at this time a struggling practitioner, depending upon his practice for his daily bread instead of the possessor of wealth computed by figures that astonish sticklers for etiquette. Every one knows how extensively the Doctor advertised, and what large sums he spent in so doing. Journals from Siskiyou to Los Angeles contained his column, and when the tide of emigration rolled off into the Territories, north or south, the first number of a newspaper in the principal town, told the people of the fact that this healer of ills that flesh is heir to was resident in San Francisco. Some persons laughed at the enormous trouble and expense to which the Doctor subjected himself, and considered it time and money wasted; but he was sure of his game, waited patiently, and his reward came at last. His investment in printer's ink and paper, like the bread cast upon the waters, returned to him after many days; and now, blessed with abundant means, he retires while in the prime of life, to enjoy in elegant leisure the fruits of his business sagacity, and what is still more to be desired, with the reputation of a fair-dealing and an honorable man.

—S. F. Call.

The English language must appear fearfully and wonderfully made to a foreigner. One of them looking at a picture of a number of vessels, said, "See what a flock of ships!" He was told that a flock of ships was called a fleet, but that a fleet of sheep was called a flock. And it was added, for his guidance in mastering the intricacies of our language, that "a flock of girls is called a bevy, that a bevy of wives is called a pack, and a pack of thieves is called a gang, and a gang of angels is called a host, and a host of porpoises is called a shoal, and a shoal of buffaloes is called a herd, and a herd of children is called a troop, and a troop of partridges is called a covey, and a covey of beauties is called a galaxy, and a galaxy of ruffians is called a horde, and a horde of rubbish is called a heap, and a heap of oxen is called a drove, and a drove of blackguards is called a mob, and a mob of whales is called a school, and a school of worshippers is called a congregation, and a congregation of engineers is called a corps, and a corps of robbers is called a band, and a band of locusts is called a swarm, and a swarm of people is called a crowd, and a crowd of gentlemen is called the elite, and the elite of the city's thieves and rascals are called the roughs, and the miscellaneous crowd of city folks is called the community, or the public, according as they are spoken of by the religious community or secular people."

WATERLOO, THE DAY AFTER THE BATTLE.

On the surface of two square miles, it was ascertained that fifty thousand men and horses were lying. The luxurious crop of ripe grain which had covered the field of battle was reduced to litter, and beaten into the earth, and the surface, trodden down by the cavalry, and furrowed deeply by the cannon wheels, showed with many a relic of the fight. Helmets and cuirasses, shattered firearms and broken swords; all the variety of military ornaments, Lancer caps and highland bonnets; uniforms of every color, plumes and pennons; musical instruments, the apparatus of artillery, flags, bugles; but why dwell on the picture of a field after the battle. Each and every ruinous display bore mute testimony to the misery of such a battle. Could the melancholy appearance of this scene of death be heightened, it would be by witnessing the researches of the living, amid its desolation, for the objects of their love. Mothers, and wives, and children, for days were occupied in that mournful duty; and the confusion of the corpses—friend and foe, intermingled as they were—often rendered the attempt at recognizing individuals difficult, and sometimes impossible. In many places the dead lay four deep upon each other, marking the spot some British square had occupied, exposed for hours to the murderous life of a French battery. Outside, Lancer and cuirassier were scattered thickly on the earth. Madly attempting to force the serried bayonets of the British, they had fallen in bootless essay by the mucketry of the inner files. Farther on you trace the spot where the cavalry of France and England had encountered; chasseur and hussar were intermingled; and the heavy Norman horses of the Imperial Guard were interspersed with the gay chargers which had carried Albion's chivalry. Here the Highlander and traillor lay side by side together; and the heavy Dragoon, with Erin's green badge upon his helmet, was grappling in death with the Polish lancer. On the summit of the ridge, where the ground was cumbered with the dead, and trodden fetlock deep in mud and gore by the frequent rush of rival cavalry, the thick-strawn corpses of the Imperial Guard, pointed out the spot where Napoleon had been defeated. Here in column, that favored corps, on whom his last chances rested, had been annihilated; and the advance and repulse of the Frenchmen. In the hollow below, the last struggle of France had been vainly made; for there the Old Guard attempted to meet the British, and afford time to their dis-organized companies to rally.

DOING BUSINESS BY TELEGRAPH.—I think the most curious fact, taken altogether that I ever heard of the electric telegraph was told me by the cashier of the Bank of England. You may have heard of it. It may have been in print; I am sure it deserves to be. Once upon a time, then, on a certain Saturday night, the folks at the Bank could not make the balance come right by just £100. This is a serious matter in that establishment—I do not mean the cash, but the mistake in arithmetic—for it occasions a world of scrutiny. An error in balancing has been known, I am told to keep a delegation of clerks from each office at work sometimes through the whole night. A hue and cry was of course made after this £100, as if the old lady in Thread-needle street would be in the Gazette for want of it. Luckily, on Sunday morning, a clerk in the middle of the sermon, (I dare say, if the truth was known,) felt a suspicion of the truth, and he was the first to find it. He told the cashier on Monday morning that perhaps the mistake might have occurred in packing some boxes of specie for the West Indies, which had been sent to Southampton for shipment. The suggestion was immediately acted upon. Here was a race; lightning against steam, and steam with cipher and forty hours' start given. Instantly the wires asked "Whether such a vessel had left harbor?" "Just weighing anchor," was the answer. "Stop her!" frantically shouted the electric telegraph. It was done. "Have upon deck certain boxes marked so and so; weigh them carefully." They were weighed, and one—the delinquent—was found heavier by just one packet of a hundred sovereigns than it ought to be. "Let her go," said the mysterious telegraph. The West Indian folks were debited with just £100 more, and the error was corrected without looking in the boxes, or delaying the voyage an hour. Now this is what may be called "doing business."

The Springfield Republican says: "A married woman, whose husband holds a position in the Boston Custom House, has been one of the largest contractors in that State for furnishing supplies for the army, her contracts during the last year amounting to a half a million of dollars, and the total since the war began to nearly two millions. She has established two stores at Beaufort and Morehead city, N. C., besides establishing a steam saw mill which is now ready to saw the logs which two hundred contractors have been cutting for her in the pine forests of North Carolina. A vessel is about to sail from Boston laden with supplies for the regiment of laborers in her employ."

By dint of much exertion and great enterprise, one of "Our Young Men" has succeeded in compiling the following true and reliable statement of the principles professed by the new party. He has had his hair cut, and is doing well on low diet, since. In case our readers should wish to know more, it is not impossible that Mr. Mahoney, and (his) Salsbury of Delaware, may be able to communicate. Here is the platform, "so far as heard from."

XVI.—Repeal of the Sunday Liquor law.

XVII.—The integrity of the Habeas Corpus.

XVIII.—The Union before the trigger.

XIX.—Speedy recognition of the Southern Confederacy.

XX.—The Union.

THE ART OF BEING POLITE.—First and foremost, don't try to be polite. It will spoil all. If you keep everwhomling your guests with ostentatious entreaties to make themselves at home, they will very soon wish they were there. Let them find out you are happy to see them by your actions rather than words. Always remember to let bashful people alone at first; it is the only way to set them at their ease. Trying to draw them out has oftentimes the contrary effect of driving them—out of the house! Leading the conversation is a dangerous experiment. Better follow in its wake, and if you want to endeavor yourself to talkers, learn to listen well. Never make a fuss about anything—never talk about yourself—and always preserve composure—no matter what solecism or blunders others may commit. Remember that it is a very foolish proceeding to lament that you cannot offer to your guests a better house, or furniture, or viands. It is fair to presume that the visit is to you, not to these surroundings. Give people a pleasant impression of themselves, and they will be pretty sure to go away with a pleasant impression of your qualities. On just such slender wheels as these the whole fabric of society turns; it is your business, then, to keep them in revolving order.

MISTAKEN FOR AN EMBASSADOR.—A correspondent writing from Paris says:

"I hope it may never fall to the lot of any of our readers to be mistaken for an ambassador, as happened to a friend of mine yesterday. He arrived at a hotel which, to injure no vested interests I will call Hotel Enorme, and being half asleep, asked for a bed room. It was six A. M., and he went to bed and to sleep. When he awoke he found himself lying in state in a crimson satin bed, the room lighted up by many bougies, and quite a vista of looking glasses reflected and reflected his astonished face. He arose and found baths prepared in a dressing room, fitted up like a lady's boudoir, and, finally, breakfast arranged on a small table in the midst of the vast saloon, bright with mirrors and splendid with gold and crimson. Alarmed he rung the bell: 'Waiter, where am I?' 'Hotel Enorme, votre excellence!' answered the premier. 'And the price?' asked my friend. 'Oh, a bagatelle, as your excellence will see by the tariff.' He looked, and found it was 200 francs. 'Why put me here?' 'I thought monsieur was an ambassador! Why?' 'Because monsieur wore a black coat.'"

The Washington correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce writes that a curious and interesting discovery has just been discovered in the Department of State, bearing upon the boundary line between the State of Minnesota and the British Provinces. From time immemorial all the maps that have come before the public have represented the dividing line as barely touching the utmost southern extremity of the Lake of the Woods, and then passing directly to the westward. A recent investigation of the maps and treaty touching the matter, has brought to light the fact that the boundary line, after reaching the lake, passes through one half of its center, thence westward up an extensive bay or arm, then directly south again until it reaches the main meridian, and then continues to the west. The upshot of the story is that Minnesota has a big lump of valuable land which she did not know belonged to her, and she has full command of the Lake of the Woods.

22—All Letters relating to the business affairs of the paper should be addressed to the "THE PLUMAS PRINTING COMPANY."

THE LAW OF NEWSPAPERS.

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered as wishing to continue their subscriptions.

2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their papers, the publishers may continue to send them until all arrearages are paid.

3. If subscribers refuse or neglect to take their papers from the office to which they are directed, they are held responsible until they have settled the bill and ordered the paper discontinued.

A RECOGNITION.—The S. F. Call is heavy on such "incidents" as these:

"A lady and gentleman who had been to the theater, went into a saloon for the purpose of getting a cup of tea. A few moments after they had entered a man followed, and taking a seat at the same table began staring very intently at the lady. Her companion spoke to the man, and asked him if he would be kind enough to take a seat at another table. 'Excuse me,' said the stranger, 'but I desire to ask your companion a question, if she will permit me.' The lady signified her willingness to answer him, when he said, 'If I am not mistaken your name is — and you are a native of Decatur, Illinois.' She replied that she was a native of the town mentioned, and that she had borne that name until she had married. 'Then I am glad to see you,' replied the stranger, 'for you are my sister. When I left home you were only seven years old; but something in your features, when I saw you in the theater caused me to believe that I knew you and I followed you.' Of course a joyous meeting was the result."

DEBT AND RESOURCES.—Our national debt on the first day of January last was about $1,400,000,000. The loyal States in 1800 possessed real and personal property of the value of 42,035,000,000; the amount in 1850 was only about $5,170,000,000, being an addition of wealth of nine per cent. per annum, after paying all the expenses of subsistence for the people. Now, as our productive industry has not been checked during the past two years, but has rather been enlarged and stimulated, we should now be adding at least $1,000,000,000 a year to our surplus wealth were we not at war. If, therefore, we deduct from this annual surplus of $1,000,000,000, the cost of the war, which as we have seen, is $1,400,000,000, for thirty-one months, or say $425,000,000 a year, we shall find that the nation is not only paying the expenses of the war, out of its annual profits, but is amassing wealth besides. No less than 575,000,000 of dollars are yearly added to that accumulated capital, while every year renders more available and more productive the labor, enterprise and ingenuity of our citizens.

GAMBLING.—The charge to the San Francisco Grand Jury contains the following:

There is a fearful amount of gambling carried on in this city. Scarcely a street but can claim a "hell," where the unwary are fleeced of their hard earnings. Men who stand at the street-crossings during the day, dressed in the latest mode, are emissaries of the gamster, who sits behind his table awaiting the introduction of a victim. These fellows should be watched, and if possible brought to punishment. In all portions of the city can be found faro-banks, and within a stone's throw of the City Hall—I am credibly informed—can be found a dozen gambling games. It is your duty to endeavor to bring these men to punishment, and to break up these dens of iniquity. To do this, you are privileged to use such means as you may deem to be right. Unfortunately, you cannot enter these dens, but you can do the next thing to it, you can compel those who do enter to appear before you, and give such information as they possess.

A FATAL BEAUTY. A Paris correspondent of the Chicago Times, says that there is in that city, at this time, a very lovely, and very charming young lady, who is destined, by an extraordinary fate, to go through the world, without being married. She is a dark beauty with magnificent eyes, a glowing cheek, a lively expression, a graceful figure in fact, altogether endowed with every attraction, even to that of having in her own right $500,000, and being an only daughter, with the prospect of inheriting millions. This fair lady is now about twenty-six years old, and has been engaged to be married twelve times. Each time, the fortunate lover has died within a few weeks of the time appointed for the nuptial ceremony. Yet no suspicion of dagger or bowl can be cast on the fair one; a dark mysterious fatality has carried them away. Several died of typhoid fever; one was killed in a duel, one was thrown from a horse two were killed by a railroad accident

QUINCY.
SATURDAY, APRIL 23, 1864.
For President, 1864.
ABRAHAM LINCOLN.
Subject to the decision of the National Convention.

NEUTRALITY.

An old and true friend of ours, residing in Indian Valley, has addressed to us a letter, in which among other things he says:

"Now, as the Union is the only paper in the county, it must be apparent to you, that it would be better to be neutral in politics, so far as the paper is concerned; for Democrats must to a certain extent, support the paper, and I think you are too bitter on them sometimes."

We answer our friend publicly:

The Quincy Union, as long as it is controlled by us, or at least as long as the present war for the suppression of rebellion shall continue, cannot be neutral. Neutrality in war is too near nothing, to suit our ideas. We are not on the fence; we want Uncle Sam to whip this fight; we believe it to be the duty of the country to support the Executive of the Nation in all his efforts to suppress the rebellion, whether those efforts are in the ordinary exercise of his functions of President, or Commander-in-Chief of the army and navy. All our sympathies are with the Government, all our wishes are for the unity, all our hopes are with her. We detest the senseless rebels who are attempting to destroy her power, and cannot be neutral in the struggle. Neutrality is too much on the order of McConnellism. We do not believe any man can do his duty in a fight by being a passive neutral spectator.

As for being "too bitter" on copperheads, we cannot be too bitter. We detest the dodging, doubtful shapes assumed by them. We believe their object is to embarrass the Government. We believe some of them would rather see the United States go to smash, than to see them ruled by any other party than the "Democratic."

We are in for the war; we cannot desert, and we know that our old friends of the copperhead persuasion love us most cordially. There are numbers of them who, we believe, respect us more than they do members of their own party, who have neither State pride, nor National pride, either; but so long as grass grows, or water runs, we shall speak our belief. If Democrats don't like our way of talking, they need not listen to us; but we wish it distinctly understood, that the QUINCY UNION, under the control of the present editor, is not, and will not be neutral; nor yet will we throw out the flag of "independence," to swindle democrats into subscription. They know us, they know we are stiff-backed for Uncle Sam, and as long as this paper waves, it will advocate the cause of the Union, and curse the enemies of the Union.

LOOK ON THIS PICTURE.—ORVILLE.—Scarcely a dwelling but is buried in a thicket of shrubbery—roses and honey suckles. Trees of several years growth margin our more retired streets. The court-house square is a parterre rich in a luxuriant growth of clover, and weeping willows and locusts intersperse the space, and complete the attractions of the spot.—Union Record.

And then on this!

QUINCY.—With the exception of here and there a house, our dwellings are unpainted. A few yards show the commencement of taste in the shape of roses, &c. The Court House and Jail stand unprotected by fence; the public square in the town, common for cows, pigs, horses and dogs; nothing inviting in the surroundings of home, and the town itself fairly asleep with Rip Vanwinkleism. We envy our neighbors their wealth of shrubbery, and hope to live to see the day when our town will rival it in that respect.

SEVATOR.—Several of our contemporaries pitch into us because we stand up for John Conness, as a man and as a Senator. We cannot help our likes, or control our dislikes. We have not a word to say against any man or men who choose to make war against him, as long as the warfare is carried on courteously; but our Senator is in our opinion able to hold his own, unless he is stabbed in the back, by cowardly personal or political enemies. He has gained the prize for which he has labored. He fills his position with signal ability, and every Californian should be proud that Conness' patriotism is more than a set-off to the maudlin, drunken buffoon, McDougal.

Scarlet fever rages at Auburn and vicinity, three or four children dying weekly.

IMPORTANCE OF NEXT ELECTION.

We believe intelligent Union men realize the importance of the next election. On the issue to be then met, depends the future existence of our nation, for no sane man supposes that in case a Copperhead is elected President, that the power of the nation will be exerted to crush the present rebellion, but, rather, that traitors will be received at Washington, and their proposals of peace acknowledged, to "avoid," as our coppery friends say, the horrors and expense of civil war. We charge upon the so-called Democratic party, this fact, that its leaders are, without any exception, bound, body and soul to the interest of the slave-holder's rebellion. Their speeches show it. Their platforms either acknowledge it, or for policy sake, dodge it; and the fact is self evident from the course they have preserved toward the legal authorities of the country; carping at the least mis'ake, captious in the minority; cursing where they cannot control; swearing that they would not vote a man nor a dollar to carry on the war.

The election of the next President will be the most important one that the nation has ever been engaged in, for on its result will hang the future of the nation. We say nothing of slavery, for that is in reality but a side issue; but shall we acknowledge ourselves whipped, when really, the day is ours? Shall we turn the nation into a mere tool of the Southern rebellion, become mere puppets, that move only at the dictation of Jeff. Davis and his backers? Shall we acknowledge our flag inferior to the cursed "stars and bars?"

When the war commenced it was intended as a war of conquest, to conquer and crush out treason. Any thing short of a full and complete success will be a loss to our Government. Anything less than absolute victory on the part of the nation, and unqualified submission on the part of the rebels, will leave a future of strife for our children to settle. To acknowledge ourselves too weak, or too cowardly to stop short of final success, will stamp us in the eyes of the world, and in our own eyes, as having been foolishly pretending, and as aspiring in National dignity, for we shall lack the prerequisite of nationality, viz: patriotism.

This endorsement of nationality can only be reached by electing some man upon the platform of the Union party, for the people know the Union party is composed of men whose nationality is thorough and complete, while it is equally well known that the opposition is composed of men who love the Rebellion better than they do this (as they term it) "Abolition Despotism." To the members of that party who advocate peace, we have nothing to say; their political sin is unpardonable, but to many who earnestly favor war as the only means by which an armed rebellion can be crushed, and still cling to the skirts of the Democratic party, we conjure them to act no longer with a party whose success is prayed for by traitors, but to unite with the organization, which has shown itself to be in earnest in crushing out Rebellion.

To the young men in that party, we ask, (in all candor and sincerity) this question, Do you desire the country disunited through the success of rebellion? If you do, argument is lost upon you, but if you wish to have your country united as of old, free in reality, prosperous beyond past history, then join with the only party that shows a determination to accomplish these objects, and remember that in a few years it will be a cause of regret to you to acknowledge, that when your mother country was struggling to preserve her existence, you stood by and laughed at her efforts; to acknowledge that you scorned her officers and soldiers, and affiliated with a party, whose only praise for them was to call them "Lincoln's hirelings," "blood-thirsty abolitionists," &c. The issue to be met this Fall is a fair and square issue. On the one side, "comfort for rebellion," and the certainty of disintegration of the Union. On the other, loyal love to our glorious old mother, and a patriotic determination to keep the land of Washington, as Washington intended it should be.

The taint of Copperheadism, will last beyond this generation. It will, when the full intent of the present is known, be a greater stigma and reproach, to call a person a copperhead, than it is in this day to call a person the child of a tory; infinitely greater, for a tory only opposed an experiment, while a copperhead opposes a fixed fact of Nationality, with its attendant glory and power.

PI-UTES.—Some trouble with this tribe of Indians during the summer, is anticipated by persons herding cattle near Pyramid Lake. Owing to the partial failure of the grass crops; the Indians consider that there will not be more than enough for their own stock, and have notified all of the whites to drive their cattle and horses away. If it is not done, there will be a mass in the camp.

LETTER FROM "BRAD."

SAN FRANCISCO, April 17th, 1864.
DEAR UNION:—As you will see by the heading of this, Brad has removed his household gods (nary goddess) to the city of sand-hills; has exhausted the rounds of Telegraph Hill, the Willows, North Beach, etc., and to day finds me listless, and full of idleness, and strong is habit that when I pulled out pen, ink, and paper, involuntarily I found "Dear Union" written at the top of this page, so here goes.

In looking over the personelle of the last Legislature, it is like casting your eye over a prairie, soil good, but nothing to relieve the eye; to be sure there are some half dozen good intellects, but the great mass were so-so, only. The members were generally men of good sound judgment, but no brilliancy, with here and there an exception.

In looking over my scrap-book, kept during the winter, I find the following entry: "In the Assembly Sears is first in position, but first in talent is Thompson Campbell."

Thompson Campbell is one of that cluster of brilliant, who once sojourned at Springfield, Illinois. The cotemporary then of Joe Davies, President Lincoln Senator Douglas, Col. Baker and Young Ferguson; a lawyer of the first class; an orator, of Breck Democratic antecedents, but now a thoroughgoing Union man of the Ben Butler stripe. He was the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, and an earnest honest legislator.

In person Mr. Campbell is about five feet ten inches high, and will probably weigh 150 pounds; eyes coal-black, and when speaking, brilliant; skin on the order of Rufus Choate; face deeply seamed, with wrinkles, which run with the muscles; hair long, black, and combed straight back, forehead rather high than broad, but well developed. As he walks through the streets, men who do not know him, turn to look at him, for his presence requires a second look. In repose his eyes have a dreamy look, as though he were absorbed in calculation, and they wander vaguely without seeming to see anything, but once get him started and they fairly blaze with light.

His manner of speaking is slow and emphatic; every word weighs a pound, and when once engaged in debate, his face works like a crab travels—in every direction, and when he gets after a man with invective, his eye tells more than his tongue; and although every word is choice Saxon English, yet it tells terribly on his opponent. He fairly scalps an enemy, with the coolness of a surgeon and the love of an Indian. For some cause or other he does not enjoy the confidence of the people's party, (i. e., the movers of that organization,) and when his name was presented at the late Convention as a candidate for delegate to Baltimore, an old iron bound fossil named Torrey, got up and put Frank Pixley up, as he (Torrey) said, to beat Campbell, and among other things declared in favor of keeping him (C.) on the anxious seat a spell longer, because he had been a Breckinridge Democrat. I saw Jim Shafter when Torrey made the break, and although believing with Torrey, yet not one of them dared face the storm, which those few remarks called up. You, (Mr. Editor,) started the ball, by entering your protest; Judge McCune, Col. Evans, Dodson, and Hoyt of San Francisco followed, and when the votes were counted and Campbell was called for, Brad knows that he touched many a sore head in that Convention, when he declared that "the man who was in favor of resolving the Union party back to original elements, was a traitor at heart."

But Brad is touching on forbidden ground, and will quit the theme, for it will lead to politics. Thompson Campbell will go to Baltimore, and in Brad's opinion will be the man selected to place his old friend Lincoln, in nomination, and will then return and stump this State for him. In political life, Campbell is a baby; he ain't up to the tricks, but the force and momentum of his will places him a head and shoulders above any other man in this State. He was conceded to be the man of the last Assembly. But I have spun out my yarn on Thompson Campbell until there is no room left to make a "secondly" to this sermon.

Yours, Occasionally,
BRAD.

OUR CHOICE.—It is singular in the eyes of some, that there should be any division of sentiment among Union men, as to who shall be the choice for the next President. We hear, every day remarks fall from lips that never breathed a word that is not the shadow of a loyal heart, that Lincoln is too slow; Butler too fast; Chase needed where he is; Banks too politic; Fremont too speculative. Each of these men have their friends, and each have their faults, but the crucible of the National Convention will burn off all the dross, and leave us a man whom it should be our pleasure, as it is our duty to support.

There is no use for Californians to differ on this subject. The choice on this majority in Convention is and shall be our choice, and we believe it will be Lincoln, by acclamation.

THE FLAG.—This old Tuolumne Copperhead smasher, has reared itself for the work again, at San Francisco. Its promises in the "Introductory" are useless, for every man knows the stamp of the Flag's loyalty. Long may it wave in the Metropolis of our State, and may it prove a daily thorn in the sides of the Bulletin and Press. We welcome it back to our Ex. list with joyful feelings.

TOO FAST.—We were premature in stating that a paper was soon to be started at Susanville. The proper inducements are not offered as yet.

NEWS FROM THE EAST.

NEW YORK April 17th 1864.
The Richmond Examiner has a rumor that Burnside's forces are landing at Newport News.

The same paper places the strength of Grant's army at forty-four thousand infantry and say that twenty thousand in reinforcements will be the extent of his present resources.

FORTRESS MONROE, April 17th 1864.
A Port Royal paper of the 14th reports the capture of the side-wheel blockade runner Alliance, on the 13th, near Dawfuskie Island, Savannah river, where she ran aground. All but six of the crew were taken prisoner. She was from Nassau with an assorted cargo for the rebel Government, valued at $85,000.

The Savannah Republican of the 14th states that the Yankee prisoners at Andersonville (Ga.), are dying at the rate of twenty to thirty-five a day.

Nassau papers state that Mobile, Savannah, Charleston and Wilmington are less rigidly blockaded than ever. The papers also say that fast steamers are coming in with supplies for the rebels, which promise large profits.

The paymaster arrived at Port Royal on the 8th with a million of dollars for the payment of all troops in the Department.

Jacksonville dates to the 11th instant gives a list of 350 of our wounded in the hands of the rebels.

A fire on Folly Island, on the 8th, destroyed the Quartermasters stores valued at 20,000.

KNOXVILLE, April 16th, 1864.
A large mass meeting was held to-day in front of the Court house. A resolution was offered by Parson Brownlow favoring emancipation, recommending a convention requesting Governor Johnson to call the same at the earliest practicable period, and indorsing the Administration and the war policy of President Lincoln. The resolution was unanimously carried. Governor Johnson made a powerful and telling speech.

The guerrilla Reynolds and his command were surprised yesterday by a small force of our cavalry. Ten rebels were killed, and fifteen including Reynolds, were captured, with their horses, equipments and arms.

MEMPHIS, April 15th.
There is not much said, but there is a general gritting of teeth among the officers here, when the massacre at Fort Pillow is mentioned. Several officers have been heard to say that unless the Government takes retaliatory steps they should consider it their duty to shoot every man of Forrest's command that they met, taking no prisoners.

The soldiers have threatened to shoot Forrest's men now in Irving Prison if they get a chance.

CHATTANOOGA, April 16th.
All is quiet in front, and no change of the situation. A rebel Lieutenant and fifty-two non-commissioned officers and privates came into our lines last night. They report that Hardee's corps has been ordered away from Dalton, and several teams left before they came away. It was believed in the rebel camp that they were going to Virginia.

CAIRO, April 17th.
The steamer Syren has arrived from New Orleans. She brings a report that Wirt Adams' force was defeated by troops from the Big Black a week ago, and several hundred prisoners taken. No particulars.

Ten gunboats are now up the Red river.

The steamer Golden Gate, from Memphis and Fort Pillow, laden with Government stores and private freight, was captured by guerrillas on the night of the 12th, fifteen miles above Memphis. The boat, passengers and crew were rifled of everything.

WASHOE STAR.—A newspaper under this name has been established at Washoe City, in place of the Pioneer, the editor of which, Lovejoy, is about to start an evening paper at Virginia (N. T.) The editor and publisher of the Star, E. B. Wilson, indorses Lovejoy and wishes him all success, but adds: "We intend that truth and purity shall be among the chief ornaments of the Washoe Star, and all obscenity and impudence shall be counted with the obnoxious scenes of days gone by."

That's rather heavy on John K., of the Pi-Ute.

REBEL VENTILATOR.—We are indebted to Harlow Pierson, Esq., for a couple of copies of Brownlow's Knoxville Whig & Rebel Ventilator, the first that we have seen. The "Parson" is awful on rebels and their sympathizers, through his paper, and handles them without gloves or tongs.

JURY SYSTEM.—An Act was passed the last session of the Legislature, and has now become a law, repealing the Jury Law of last year in several counties. Tehama county being embraced in the bill. This Act restores the old law, and does away with the present complicated machinery for empanelling a jury. The old law was principally a nuisance, and cost the county an enormous sum to carry out its provisions. The repeal of the law will be a relief to the Sheriff.—Independent.

Plumas county is also embraced in the Bill.

DEATH OF PRISONERS AT RICHMOND.—It has transpired that no less than five hundred of our prisoners in Richmond died during the month of February. The last installment received at Annapolis where in comparatively good condition, having been inspected before being sent off, and the sick and disabled retained. Whether the rebels intend thus to swell the mortality list, and increase the number of totally disabled, is a subject of conjecture with those returned.—Ree

This informant reports that Comstock is a hard working man, and gives promise that he will not be as easily separated from his present good fortune as he was from that he owned at Washoe.

GRIN AND BEAR IT.—The enforcement of the collection of the Foreign Mining Tax, seems to be rather "nifty" on some of our residents, who have never "renounced their allegiance to any foreign Prince, Potentate, State or Sovereignty," whatever; but the best way is to pay up, or take a chance in the draft. Oh, yes! they were in high spirits when the Enrolling Officer was around, to think that they were not citizens. They don't like to pay the $4 a month quite as well.

WITH A "K."—That "high old Justice," who has before received a notice from our hand, spells Court, with a "K," and when he was informed that it was not correct, he said he "knew a d-d sight better, for it was thus they spelled it in old Kaintuck." From all accounts, the proceedings of that "K-o-u-r-t" are decidedly rich, and are made more so, by the "knowing airs," and "stately bearing" of the intelligent individual. "K-o-u-r-t of Justice," indeed.

GOOD.—We noticed that our "jaws" were a peculiarly happy lot for the last week and on enquiring the cause, we found that the Union demijohn had been regularly filled each day at Schlatter's, with the best quality of Lager. His cellar is well supplied, and it seems mighty well these hot days. Try it!

P. S. Just as we were going to press a full keg of Lager was brought in by the Brewer. It's good, sure. Accept thanks, Messrs Schlatter & Neisama.

"A HOP."—A Dance or as the city folks call it, a "Hop," came off at the Coburn House Hall on Thursday evening last, which was well attended, and passed off very pleasantly. A "Lunch" gotten up in good style by "Uncle Johnny" was served about midnight, and the "Engineers" under the leadership of Tout were on hand, and furnished the music.

IN TOWN.—We noticed the arrival in our town of Messrs. Sam. Goodwin and J. D. Miner, both old citizens of our county; and who, for the past two or three years, been "ruralizing" in that paradise of sage brush, boulders, &c., the Humboldt Mining region. Glad to see them back again.

"PADDLE YOUR OWN CANOE."

Up this world, and down this world,
And over this world and through,
Though defiled about,
And tossed without,
Why, "paddle your own canoe."
What though the sky is heavy with clouds,
Or shining a field of blue;
If the bleak wind blows;
Or the sunshine glows,
Still "paddle your own canoe."
What if the breakers rise up ahead,
With dark waves rushing through,
More steadily by
With downcast eyes,
And "paddle your own canoe."
If a hurricane rise in midnight skies,
And the stars are lost to view,
Glide safely along,
With a smile and a song,
And "paddle your own canoe."
Up this world, and down this world,
And over this world and through,
Though weary and worn,
Bereft and forlorn,
Still "paddle your own canoe."
Never give up when trials come,
Never grow sad and blue;
Never sit down
With a fear and a frown,
But "paddle your own canoe."
There are daisies springing along the shore,
Blooming and sweet for you;
There are rose-hued dyes
In the autumn skies,
Then "paddle your own canoe."

There may be counsels too weighty for women to bear. He knows little who tells his wife all.

Let some ingenious quibbler explain how a letter written by an officer can be called a private letter.

It is very certain that man will not bent.

The busiest coopers in these times are those that hoop the ladies.

Treat the butcher with respect; he is a being of flesh and blood.

A lady who wears a pretty slipper is often loved by the foot.

Tell not your secrets in a corn field;
it has thousands of ears.

bull to be slow is not to be sure.

Generally the greatest humbug is he who talks of humbug the most glibly.

The musician who can make his hearers

We love women all the better for their weakness. Those strong-minded women always seem as if they wanted to be men and could not.

Hon. Cornelius Cole has introduced a bill in Congress to aid the railroad from Marysville to Oregon, and Mr. Elliot

a law. Roll on, oh, car of State! So says the Bee!

A LITTLE boy kneeling at his mother's knee to say his evening prayer, asked leave to pray in his own words, and with childlike simplicity said: "God burn up; Good bless papa and mamma; God bless me and make my boots go on easy in the morning."

J. DEVINE, the Sculptor, whose earlier works on prominent men, and especially Broderick giving him a reputation as an artist, has just completed a life sized bust of the late Rev. T. Starr King, which is pronounced by the friends of the lamented deceased an admirable likeness, and is certainly entitled to rank high as a work of art.

A MAN living in the southern part of Lafayette, Ind., conceived the suspicion that his wood-pile was unlawfully departing towards some neighbor's tenement. The brilliant idea occurred to him of plugging up a charge of gunpowder in several sticks of wood. These in due time disappeared, and their locality was traced by a terrific explosion in a certain neighbor's house. A shattered stove and a terrified family told the story.

A CLEVER YANKEE, being much troubled with rats, and being determined to get rid of them, tried every possible means but without success. At last he got a lot of rats, and shut them in a cage, they devoured one another till only a single one was left. He then turned this one loose, who, excited with the blood of his fellow rats, and having become a genuine cannibal, killed and ate all the wild rats he could find on the premises.

A PORTENT FEMININE who found the cords of Hymen not so silky as she expected, gave vent to her feelings in the following regretful stanzas:

When I was young I used to earn
My living without trouble;
Had clothes, and pocket-money, too,
And hours of pleasure double.
I never dreamed of such a fate,
When I was wed, was courted—Wife, mother, nurse, seamstress, cook, housekeeper, chambermaid, landlady, dairy woman, and scrub generally, doing the work of six.

For the sake of being supported!
A good story is told of old deacon B., away up in New Hampshire. He was riding along in his old sleigh, one frosty morning, and overtook a tow-headed shaver of some ten years old. Being pious he inclined the old deacon opened his batteries as follows:

"My little man, don't you think you ought to attend to the conversion of your soul?"
"Hey?"
"Don't you think, my fine fellow, it is time to be thinking of another world?"
"Well, y-e-s, father says he thinks it is, for old deacon B. has got about all of this world."
The deacon clucked at the old mare, and was off in a twinkling.

will attend
only to those cases under treatment.

CARD.

DR. L. J. CZAPKAY begs leave to announce to the public, and particularly to his patrons on the Pacific coast that he is about to close the business, with a view of retiring from the present from the arduous labors of his profession.

As it is his intention, during the ensuing fall, to leave the United States, for the purpose of visiting Europe, he will not receive any new patients after the 1st day of July, 1864. Those therefore, who may desire his services, will apply within a reasonable time.

Doctor Czapkay desires to assure those who are receive all the attention which his obligations prescribe and their cases respectively demand.

Those who hold Contracts, guaranteeing a cure are hereby requested to report to Dr. Czapkay, before the 1st day of June, 1864, whether or not dented in the annals of medicine.

his "Institute," and the good will of his business,

Institute, Sacramento Street, below Montgomery ever distant, who may desire the opinion and advice of Dr. Czapkay on their respective cases, and who think proper to submit a written statement of such, in preference to holding a personal interview, are respectfully assured that their communications will be held most sacred. Dr. L. J.

Czapkay takes this opportunity of observing, that all letters are only opened and replied to by himself, and the latter as promptly as possible.
If the case be fully and candidly described, personal communication will be superfluous, as instructions for diet, regimen, and the general treatment of the case itself (including the remedies), will be forwarded without delay, and in such a manner as to convey no idea of the purport of the
